Welcome

We are delighted to invite you to the 24th INTERSPEECH Conference from August 20th to 24th, to be held in the Convention Centre Dublin, Ireland. INTERSPEECH, as the world's largest and most comprehensive conference on the science and technology of spoken language processing, is a hugely important event for our community. We are particularly keen to offer our community a chance to reconnect in a friendly and relaxed atmosphere, where everyone is welcome.

Despite being a major European city, Dublin remains as intimate as a village and as friendly as an Irish pub. Framed by mountains, centred on a river and edged by a beautiful bay, the city's streets and alleys are filled with vibrant art and historic buildings, hip cafés and traditional "old man" pubs, as Dubliners call them. Walk the streets and you'll feel the energy of over 1,000 years of history, as echoes of the Vikings mix with buzzing boutiques, cobbled streets reverberate with the sounds of buskers, and 18th century parks play host to festivals, film and food markets.

With days filled with top-quality research and vibrant discussion, and evenings packed with culture, creativity and craic (Irish term for fun), INTERSPEECH 2023 is the perfect opportunity to reconnect with colleagues from across the world.

Conference Theme

"Inclusive Spoken Language Science and Technology – Breaking Down Barriers"

The Interspeech Community has played a vital role over the decades in advancing the state of the art around the science and technology of spoken language processing. Our understanding of human speech and language enables the development of technology and policies with the ability to transform lives for the better. This creativity comes with a responsibility. We believe that our community has a special role to play in ensuring that emerging technology in the domain of speech and language should be for the benefit of the widest possible audience. We plan to use INTERSPEECH 2023 to promote the theme of inclusion in the context of speech and language research, asking participants to focus on whether their work is relevant for the widest possible range of users.

As researchers, we are all too familiar with the challenge of variability in human speech and language. We know that male and female voices are quite distinct. Our voices and speaking style change dramatically as we age from childhood to our elderly years. There are over 6000 different languages in the world. New speakers of a language bring more new accents and idiosyncrasies. Speech pathologies result in barriers to speech technology. In INTERSPEECH 2023, we want researchers to pause and think about inclusion. Is your algorithm, your system, your experiment, or discovery, useful for as wide a range of speech or speakers as possible? If your dataset has all native speakers of a language, can you extend it to non-native speakers? If you demonstrate performance of your system on an English language dataset, can you also show it works for Spanish, Chinese, or Hindi? Does your finding about adult speech include older speakers, or what are the limits and why? If you quote overall percentage performance figures, can you break that down for gender, by age, or other demographics?

Ireland is a country with two official languages – English and Irish. It is an ever-changing country, with 40% of our population under 30 years of age and 17% of population now not born in Ireland. It is a progressive society, being the first country in the world to legalise same-sex marriage by popular vote in 2015, and the first country to commit to sell off its investments in fossil fuel companies in 2019. The Irish are famous for speech and language- just think of the writer

Oscar Wilde, the poet WB Yeats, former President and former UN High Commissioner for Human Rights Mary Robinson, and the outspoken musician Bono. What better setting for this discussion!

The theme of inclusion will resonate at multiple levels throughout the conference. The roots of Interspeech lie in our understanding of human speech communication. However, with the power of deep-learning and the improved performance it has delivered for speech technology, it is possible to get carried away on the wave of algorithmic advancement. We will also celebrate the human side of speech communication, giving full recognition to the importance of including core language knowledge in technology development.
